Summary of our Privacy Notice

For young people

What we do with your personal information

1625 Independent People promises to respect and protect any personal information you share with us or that we get from other organisations.

When we collect information from you we will not do anything with it that you wouldn't reasonably expect.

We use your personal information to provide appropriate housing and support services to you, to support your wellbeing and to protect others.

The full privacy notice – which you have been given and which is available on our website – contains more information about what we do with your personal information, in relation to:

- Why we collect your personal information and how we use it
- What could happen if you don't give us your information
 - We will not be able to offer some of our services if you do not provide certain personal information
 - But there are a few bits of information that we cannot collect from you or use without your consent – so you have the choice to provide it or not
- Where we get it from – when you give it us or someone else does
- Your rights – we will support you to exercise your rights, please just ask us
- Why and how we share your personal information – you will be able to tell us who you want to share information with, but sometimes we may have to share it without your consent if we have a legal responsibility, a contract or to prevent harm or crime)
- How we keep your personal information safe and how long we keep it for
- How you can tell us you want us to stop using your information, stop sharing it with others or stop sending you information about our services (withdrawing your consent)
- How you can complain if you are unhappy with what we've done with your personal information
